Workshop: Introduction to Middle Eastern paper marbling workshop
Taught by J.C. Bielik
Located at the Bishop Hill Creative Commons
This paper marbling class is intended to be an introduction to Middle Eastern paper marbling. Historically appropriate materials and techniques will be the foundation of our class. This variety of marbling exceeds historic trades authenticity for the most demanding historic site. Our class includes a very brief history of paper marbling, the viewing of common objects employing marbled paper, and a discussion and application of basic tools, materials, and technique. There will be plenty of time for each of us to create a variety of patterns that can be used in the future to enhance a multitude of projects. Minimum of 4 participants. Maximum of 16 participants. $15.00
Workshop: Spider-Web Rose: Silk ribbon/silk thread hand embroidery workshop
Taught by Cathy Grafton
Located at the Dairy Building
Silk ribbon embroidery began in the mid 1700's where it was used on court clothing in France and England. By 1800, it was being taught in America at the Moravians Dame Schools and has gone in and out of popularity since then, such as the crazy quilt era. This workshop will be an introduction to doing silk ribbon embroidery, which basically uses traditional embroidery stitches.

Learn to create a small sampler of silk ribbon using the spider-web rose, lazy daisy, French knots, stem and ribbon stitch. You will use silk ribbon for the flowers and leaves and silk thread for stem and decorative details. We will do the embroidery work in the workshop and you will see finished pieces along with several ways to use this design and other silk ribbon possibilities. Materials to bring- a few basic sewing notions such as small scissors and a thimble. Materials will be provided and hoops will be loaned. Minimum of 4 participants. Maximum of 10 participants. $25.00

Tour: Walking Tour of Bishop Hill
Provided by the Bishop Hill Heritage Association, starts at the Steeple Building Museum
The BHIHA offers a 1.5 hour walking tour of this National Historic Landmark village. Led by expert guides, learn about the Bishop Hill Colony, which was started in 1846 by Swedish immigrants. 18 pre-Civil War buildings are still in use today in Bishop Hill as museums, businesses, and more. Minimum of 5 participants. Maximum of 20 participants. No cost but registration is required.

Session: Dance Fundamentals for Historical Site Interpreters
Presented by Jeanette Watts
Located at the Dairy Building
There are so many dances in so many eras that we interpret; as a starting point that applies to over 100 years of history, I propose to teach the fundamental vocabulary for country dances. In the 1700s, country dances and cotillions were all the rage. These dances are endless combinations of a particular vocabulary that is fairly accessible to novice dancers – like museum personnel, and museum visitors who have not danced before. In the 1800s, the same vocabulary of dance figures loses the footwork that goes with it, acquires a few name changes, and the configuration changes from predominantly long lines into predominantly squares of 8 people, but the same knowledge base from the 1700s still works for teaching dances most of the way through the 1800s.

For this session, attendees will learn some dance vocabulary, we will apply it to a period dance, I will cover some more material, we will apply it to a period dance, and we will examine the same figures as used in 1776 and in 1861. This session will be flexible to meet the needs of attendees: I will adjust exactly which dances and figures I teach to match the years the class participants portray.

Jeanette Watts is the founder of Madame Gigi’s Outrageous French Cancan Dancers, Raks Devi (belly dance troupe), the Terpsichorean Delights Dance Assembly (Vintage Ballroom club), Hard Core Vintage, and Queen City Vintage Dance. She has taught historical dance for history museums in Ohio and North Carolina, and is preparing to teach 1776 dances at historical societies and museums around the country for the 250th.

2:00 p.m.-5:00 p.m.
Workshop: Springerle cookie making
Taught by Letha Misener
Located at the Colony School
In this workshop, you will learn how to make German Springerle Cookies from scratch. This is a 2-day workshop with the mixing of the dough and the imprinting of the cookies occurring the first day and the baking of the cookies occurring the second day. The second day will occur on Friday March 22 from 4:15 to 5:30 p.m. at the Colony School as well. Minimum of 8 participants. Maximum of 15 participants. $45.00

3:45 p.m.-5:00 p.m.
Session: Where are the Black Folks? Inclusive and Integrated Civil War Historical Interpretation
Presented by Yulanda Burgess
Located at the Bishop Hill Creative Commons
On the eve of the American Civil War, 14.1 percent of the United States population consisted of African Americans. However, this percentage is not reflected in the numbers participating as interpreters at Civil War historical events, reenactments and living history events. Civil War era civilian living history groups and events remain segregated or have a small percentage of African Americans participating. Yulanda Burgess will discuss omissions and challenges related to the ethnic composition of Civil War civilian groups. Suggestions will be presented for historical organizations and civilian groups to lay foundations for more inclusive public history that involves the interaction between European and African Americans in the mid-nineteenth century. She will highlight scenarios, material culture, research and retention needed to present a more accurate ethnic depiction of the mid-nineteenth century.

Yulanda Burgess is a historical interpreter, researcher and advocate for inclusive public history. For the past forty years, she has been a guest speaker, consultant, interpreter, and writer on the African American experience in the late eighteen to early twentieth centuries. Over the decades, she has interpreted at numerous historical sites and events throughout the United States and Canada. Venues for historical presentations include the Jimmy Carter Presidential Library and Archive, African American Civil War Museum, National Park Service sites, National Underground Railroad Freedom Center, the Charles H. Wright African American Museum, Illinois Preservation Agency, and Ohio Historical Society.

Session: Communicating Agriculture and Environment Content
Presented by Dr. Debra Reid, Curator of Agriculture and the Environment at The Henry Ford

Dr. Reid addresses some ways that The Henry Ford, a large museum complex, communicates crucial agriculture and environment content to learners of all ages. She'll discuss how she selects key messages for exhibits, blogs, and workshops/walkshops, how a team settled on the name and promotional materials for a new restaurant, and how donor engagement launched a museum-wide edible education initiative.
4:15 p.m.-5:30 p.m.
Session: Footwear in the mid-19th Century: Styles and Construction
Presented by Norman Walzer
Located at the Bishop Hill Creative Commons
One of the Bishop Hill founding members was a shoemaker/cobbler so it is appropriate to examine styles of shoes and boots worn in this period and how they were constructed in Bishop Hill. This presentation examines footwear styles between the wars (1770s to 1860) using pictures from documented sources. It will also discuss methods of construction with examples of shoes with pegged and sewn soles. Prices of shoes compared with other items will be discussed. Examples of tools and their uses will be shown. The audience should have a better understanding of footwear and be able to date when an artifact was made. If time permits, a short discussion of leather treatments will be included. This session is appropriate for re-enactors as well as museum personnel.

Saturday, March 23, 2024

Participants will put a design on the leather and then start to sew the wallet pieces together. Students will know the design, learn the process, and have the materials to complete the project on their own after the class. Printed instructions will be provided.

The finished wallet will be suitable for use in re-enactments or other historical representations from 1830s to 1880s. Participants will need finger dexterity, strength, and vision that allows them to sew leather by hand. When completed they will have a usable period wallet. Maximum of 6 students will be allowed into this workshop. Maximum of 6 participants. $40 9:00 a.m.-10:15 a.m.

Session: Will it Sew? Evaluating, Repairing, and Using Antique Sewing Machines
Presented by Ann Cejka, Program Coordinator at Usher Ferry Historic Village
Located at the Steeple Building Museum
Do you have an antique treadle or hand crank sewing machine in your collection? Are you wondering if it still works or is safe to use and demonstrate? Thanks to the cutthroat business acumen of Isaac Singer, sewing machines were mass produced by the millions between 1890 and 1925, making them both readily available and a far more reliable and affordable option than a modern machine for the basic seamstress on a budget. Learn how to identify the three most common types of early sewing machines. Whether it is a Singer or a lesser-known brand, learn how to date your machine, locate a reproduction manual if yours is missing, and source commonly needed parts such as needles, bobbins, tires, and more. Tips for temperamental brands to avoid and affordable gems to treasure will also be included as well as an opportunity for up close and personal inspection and tinkering with an example of each type of machine.

10:45 a.m.-12:00 p.m.
Session: Full Sized Farming on a Quarter Acre Lot
Presented by Jonathan Kuester, Director of Historic Wagner Farm
Located at the Steeple Building Museum
What do you do when you want to interpret agriculture but you only have a small space to do it in? Recreating historic landscapes can be a challenge under the best of conditions but many sites suffer from a lack of space and suburbanization. Learn some tricks of the trade for bringing agriculture to life on the small scale.

Jonathan Kuester has spent most of his life on and around farms. Growing up on a small farm in central Indiana, he spent most of his time exploring his rural environment and looking for its history. Jonathan has worked in the museum and living history field for almost 30 years and has spent most of that time studying agricultural history and rural life. He is currently Director of Historic Wagner Farm in Glenview Illinois.
Silent Auction
Don’t forget that the silent auction is Friday evening at the Bishop Hill Creative Commons. It is a great fundraiser for MOMCC so please donate an item for auction. Do not forget to also come to the auction and bid often.

Banquet Meal and Historic Clothing
Wear something Swedish or your everyday historic clothing (any time period) for the Friday evening meal. You may need to wear your historic clothing all day Friday as there may not be time to change right before the meal Friday, but that will add interest to the day. If you don’t have anything Swedish, there are Swedish stores in Bishop Hill including the Colony Store where you can buy all sorts of Swedish items. Then you can be creative in how you will wear that item.

Ushers Ferry Historic Village
Cedar Rapids, Iowa
November 13-15, 2024

Cultivating Community: Preserving the Past, Serving the Present and Nurturing the Future
Museums rely heavily upon community support, but how do they use their mission of preserving local history to serve and support their communities in return? Join us at Ushers Ferry Historic Village in Cedar Rapids, Iowa as we explore the roots of agrarian communities and how they developed, flourished and -in some cases- faded. From farming villages to the six square mile township district that served rural citizens before the advent of automobiles, good roads and centralized county government, take a deeper look beyond the daily activities of farm life or small-town commerce to explore issues of law, government, education, transportation, social welfare, and how every-day rural citizens stepped forward to serve and build the framework of the Midwest towns and cities that we know today.
